Although it may seem like yet another album dedicated and / or inspired by the famous and absolute cult movie "Solaris" by the great russian director Andrej Tarkovskij; "Solaristica" looks like an experimental music project, a soundtrack related/dedicated only to a handful of seconds of the film and precisely to the "convulsive resurrection" scene of the "alien" character Hari shortly after attempting suicide inhaling liquid oxygen. The scene of the film is violent and captures all that sense of coldness, resignation and psychological pressure subjected by the few occupants of the space station, unwelcome guests orbiting the planet Solaris that cynically reveals his hostility materializing anxieties and regrets hidden in the hearts and minds of the occupants forced against their will to withstand pressure and psychological depression encouraged increased, in this case, by a rhythmic and deepest music wherewith the italian duo Nesting Error has created a musical theme played, resonated, remixed, chased and intensified by an obsessive rhythm created with a clear idea of experiencing a new and minimalist mode through the use of electronics equipment and tools such as Tenori on, deepest and dark synth pads, and an electrified Theremin with a totally distorted sound; an arrangement suitably designed to fill spaces already tight and claustrophobic of a space station from which once entered it seems impossible to get out.

Nonostante possa sembrare un ennesimo album dedicato e/o ispirato al celebre e assoluto cult movie "Solaris" del grande regista russo Andrej Tarkovskij; "Solaristica" appare come un progetto musicale prettamente sperimentale, una colonna sonora riferita solamente ad una manciata di secondi del film e precisamente alla scena della "resurrezione convulsiva" del personaggio alieno Hari poco dopo aver tentato il suicidio inalando ossigeno liquido. La scena del film è violenta e racchiude tutto quel senso di gelo, di rassegnazione e di pressione psicologica a cui sono sottoposti i pochi occupanti della stazione spaziale, ospiti non graditi in orbita attorno al pianeta Solaris che cinicamente rivela la sua ostilità materializzando angosce e rimpianti nascosti nel cuore e nella mente degli occupanti costretti loro malgrado a sopportare una pressione e depressione psicologica fomentata, in questo caso, da una musica incalzante e grave con cui il duo italiano Nesting Error ha dato vita ad un tema musicale suonato, risuonato, remixato, rincorso ed estremizzato da una ritmica ossessiva creata con una idea precisa di sperimentare una modalità inedita e minimale tramite l'uso di strumenti come il Tenori on, tappeti sonori di synth oscuri, gravi e un Theremin elettrificato dal suono totalmente stravolto; un arrangiamento opportunamente progettato per colmare spazi già ristretti e claustrofobici di una stazione spaziale dalla quale una volta entrati sembra impossibile uscirne.
