Huixtralizer (José Soberanes)

José became irrevocably interested in music in the year 1994. He had already acquired several musical influences the likes of dance pop, punk, hip-hop, dark metal, progressive rock and avant-garde in a versatile form, which remained however somewhat discriminatory.

Thereafter he became immersed in electronic music and began to experiment all of its facets. This gave birth to Huixtralizer, a project that incorporates musical and existential passages, denoting his characteristic personality.

He experiments with open source software and analog instruments, he has also assembled a collection of recycled samples and integrates all of the above mentioned in what can be called the "intimate mode" of this producer.
